

Data License

Effective Date: February 5, 2026

This license is a legal document designed to protect your rights and the rights of Pareto Software, LLC, the owner of Simplemaps.com. Purchasing or downloading a data product constitutes acceptance of this license.

Description of Product and Parties: This license is a contract between you (hereafter, the Customer) and Pareto Software, LLC (hereafter, the Provider) regarding the use and/or sale of a collection of geographic data (hereafter, the Database).

Ownership of Database: All rights to the Database are owned by the Provider. The Database is a cleaned and curated collection of geographic facts and the Provider retains all rights to the Database afforded by the law. Ownership of any intellectual property generated by the Provider while performing custom modifications to the Database for a Customer (with or without payment) is retained by the Provider.

License: Customers who purchase a license are granted a perpetual license to use the Database. This license does not expire. Free updates to the Database are provided only for the duration associated with the product purchased; after this period ends, the Customer retains full rights to continue using the version of the Database they possess but is no longer entitled to additional updates. Customers may use the Database for projects that benefit their organization or that their organization oversees. The Customer may also use the Database for academic work, including sharing the data privately with academic collaborators, provided the data is not publicly released. Attribution is not required unless otherwise stated. The Customer is allowed to query the Database to power privately or publicly facing applications and may make copies and backups of the data.

Restriction on Publishing Data: The Customer may not publish or otherwise expose any substantial portion of the Database in a publicly accessible form, including HTML, JSON, CSV, or other formats that make bulk data retrievable. The Customer may display limited records from the Database when such display is directly required for the normal operation of their application, provided that the amount of data displayed is narrowly tailored to the application's functionality and does not allow reconstruction of a significant part of the Database.

License Scope by Organization Size: For organizations with fewer than 500 employees, the license covers the entire organization, and anyone within the organization may use the Database. For organizations with 500 or more employees, the license is granted only to the individual purchaser or the specific team that purchases the Database. Anyone who directly collaborates with that individual or team on the licensed project may also use the Database, but the Database may not be used organization-wide. In all cases, the Customer may not publicly redistribute the Database without prior written permission. Customers may transfer their license to a third party, at the sole discretion of the Provider, by submitting a request via email.
